Course Name		Sociology 2018-19
Course Description		Sociology is a Social Studies elective course for 12th students. This semester-long course explores the complex interactions and associations that individuals have in relation to groups and the broader society. The course will introduce students to the theoretical framework of Sociology offering multiple ways to view social issues and society in general. In addition, students will look at culture and the socialization process learning how humans learn to adapt to the social environment in which they live. During this unit, students will explore the various elements of behavior that make up culture and how these “rules” affect the individual. From there, students will explore the obvious and not so obvious social structure of society which determines one’s place in that structure and how that structure is determined and preserved. Through this process, students will understand how individual behavior is shaped by social forces and the consequences for not following social expectations. By gaining a deeper insight into the power of social control and group behavior in determining individual behavior in various situations, students will be able to observe the effects of both social control and institutions on social groups through stratification and inequality. Students will study major Sociological landmark research cases which will help them understand historical and contemporary social issues in the world. Skills that will be developed in this course will include writing skills, study and research experience and a variety of critical thinking skills including defining and solving problems, recognizing ideologies, prediction and drawing conclusions, analyzing cause and effect, identifying central issues, and synthesizing trends and patterns. The ASA National Standards for High School Sociology represent current knowledge in the field at an introductory level. The National Standards are organized into four learning domains, each representing a broad area of sociological knowledge and study appropriate for the high school level. THE FOUR DOMAINS <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1 The Sociological Perspective and Methods of Inquiry Domain 2 Social Structure: Culture, Institutions, and Society Domain 3 Social Relationships: Self, Groups, and Socialization Domain 4 Stratification and Inequality

- Wherever practical, students are given multiple opportunities to demonstrate their current level of understanding and mastery of standards.
- Students are only offered a multiple opportunity if their absence was justifiably excused. Teachers may deny a multiple opportunity if the student is unexcused or if a student has a single period excused absence without a parent signing the student out or a doctor's note.

Class Expectations

Missing or incomplete assignments/assessments for this course: Superintendent Policies 6280 Homework and 6281 Make-Up Work will be followed for this course. They state that it is the student's responsibility to request and obtain missing work. When a student has an excused absence, the student has the same number of days they were absent plus one day to make up assignments. Students who are unexcused may not be able to receive feedback from Practice prior to required Assessments.

- Missing work is denoted with an M, which equals zero.
- All late or missing practice assignments will not be accepted after the turn in date, unless the student has an excused absence. Absolutely no practice assignments will be accepted after the date of the unit exam.
